PROFILE

With almost twenty years of experience in recruitment and human resources development, I have the skills, talent and experience to transform your team's effectiveness in recruitment, and ultimately, performance. My legacy of supporting organizations in developing a culture that is self-selective, and based on competence, experience and the right fit of talents, attests to my passion for recruitment, which is rooted in a fascination with observing and understanding human beings in organisations. My belief in empowerment, with agency, transcends organizational culture; I believe it is the leverage point for social change in the 21st century.
