SUMMARY	Teaching has always been, and will always be, my career dream. Ever since the age of six, I knew it was what I was born with a passion to do. I am a highly motivated and enthusiastic, student-centered teacher focused on helping every student reach for and achieve their potential. I have many experiences coordinating effective lesson plans and collaborating with colleagues and administrators. My classroom management strategies are practical and time relevant to the needs of our current students. The instructional tools I design and implement are intended to meet the needs of each individual within the larger group classroom. Identifying each student's zone of proximal development is a focus of my teaching. This idea surrounding lesson planning and implementation allows me to assist students in meeting them where they are at, and helping them to create and accomplish both academic and personal goals.
